

Cookie Policy

Introduction

Four Square Solicitors Ltd uses cookies across our website to improve our websites performance, navigation and content which ultimately will enhance the visitor experience. Our cookie policy aims to inform site visitors how we will achieve this.

What is a cookie?

Cookies are little data text files that all websites attach to your browser on your desktop PC or mobile device when you first visit a website. Some cookies are essential for websites to work and others remember things to give you a better experience online.

Once a cookie has been added to your browser it will then recognise you (if using the same device) when you re-visit that same website in the future. A cookie does not carry any viruses.

Read a bit more about the different types of cookies and what they do for you below.

Types of Cookies

There are various types of cookies each with differing levels of tracking ability. Not all websites will use all types of cookies. Many websites use cookies just as a means to track user activity on their sites.

- Essential cookies

Without these cookies, our website won't work properly. They help you move around the secure areas of the website and do things you've specifically come to the website for, like searching the services we provide or looking for our contact details.

What they do:

Remember things like the information you enter in forms. Without these cookies, this information would be lost every time you go to a new page.

- Cookies that save your settings

When you fill in a form, such as the request call back function, and your name and other details are entered, these cookies remember that, so you don't have to type it in each time you come back.

What they do:

- Remember any settings you've applied, such as layout, text size, preferences and colours
 - Remember if we've already asked you if you want to fill in a survey so that we don't keep asking you
 - They can be used to share information with any partners who provide a service on our website. The information shared is only used to provide the service, product or function and not for any other purpose
- Cookies for website information

These cookies collect anonymous information about how visitors use our website, like the most popular pages visited and any error pages you see. This information is then used to make improvements to our website - it never identifies individual users.

What they do:

Give us an overall picture of how people use our website by telling us things like the number of visitors to each page and what people do on the page, like which links they click on.

- Cookies for targeting

These cookies will recognise which parts of our website are interesting to you and to show you the pages and sections that we think will be suited to your needs. You can control whether or not these cookies are used but preventing them may stop us from offering you some services.

What they do:

- Allow us to deliver content and marketing communications tailored to your interests based on information from your visit.

Why we use cookies

Four Square Solicitors Ltd uses performance cookies so that we are able to better understand what visitors are doing when they get on to our site, what pages they go to, what navigational route they took to get there and what keywords they have used to find us.

By collating and analysing this data we are able to better customise the content and structure of the site to meet the needs of the visitors.

We do not release this data to any third party. We do not use it for promotional purposes.

Withdraw consent to cookie tracking

You are able to block your browser from being able to store cookie tracking information. All browsers should have privacy settings in which you can select the level of cookie tracking that you are comfortable with.

Consent to cookie tracking on Four Square Solicitors Ltd website

Having read our policy should you choose to progress through the website, and have not disabled cookies within your privacy settings, you are consenting to our use of performance cookie tracking.
